

Outcry over Washington National Football League Team gains momentum

As shared in the September 2013 issue of Investing in Mercy, shareholders such as the Oneida Trust and Mercy Investment Services have repeatedly called on FedEx to end its sponsorship of the Washington professional football team based on its name. In recent weeks, the issue has gained momentum as President Obama and others have joined the outcry over a name that disparages Native Americans. Read more about shareholder efforts and view an NBC Nightly News report on the issue.

KOM X